STAFF WELL BEING POLICY

What is Wellbeing?

We all feel pressure in our lives from time to time or have demands thrust upon us. Most of the time we rise to the challenges and often the effects can be positive – we perform better, we feel exhilarated and good about ourselves and our relationships with others are relaxed and positive. This is when we experience wellbeing.

Well being is: the mental, emotional, sociological, physical and physiological health of an individual. What does a well-being school look like?

All staff are happy and motivated, they feel important, valued and part of the whole school team with their efforts being appreciated and recognised, with equality of opportunity evident throughout.

Staff trust and respect each other and are courteous. There is no social hierarchy.

Aims of the policy:

To improve the mental health and physical/emotional wellbeing of all staff at Boskenwyn and Germoe Primary Schools

To improve staff attendance, recruitment and retention

To ensure a harmonious environment

To ensure all staff feel valued, able to talk openly, supported

To understand the difference between collegiality and friendship

Objectives:

To improve communication, relationships and teamwork

For individuals to feel more valued and have their contributions acknowledged

For Germoe and Boskenwyn to become a healthier, more positive, safer and more stable place to work where there are fewer stresses and strains

For a more inclusive workplace

What is Stress?

We need to be aware that stress is actually a natural and normal psychological and physiological reaction to challenge and change. However, there are times when we feel that we just cannot cope. This might occur when there are too many demands or we put too much pressure on ourselves. It might also occur when our strategies for coping don't seem good enough. This is when we might experience what we recognise as the negative effects of stress. The challenge is to ensure wellbeing for ourselves and others – to work towards "stress-proofing" ourselves, our teams and our school. We also need to know what pressures and demands might lead to stress, what our early warning signs are and what are our symptoms of stress. And in a caring organisation we will be looking out for others too, ensuring that we know what to do to help.

We know that healthy motivated staff will perform better and will be better for those we work with – pupils and students in classrooms and our colleagues.

Systems, Processes and Activities at Boskenwyn and Germoe which promote inclusive wellbeing and alleviate stress:

Staff Social Events

A staff social event will be organised half termly by a nominated staff member. Everybody will be invited to promote collegiality and prevent exclusion. Nobody is under pressure to attend nor will they be frowned upon for not attending but all will be invited to participate. Attending an event/social gathering outside of school (at somebody's house, in a pub/restaurant etc) is acceptable but if the majority of work colleagues are invited with a few exceptions of others, or where patterns of this behaviour evolve, it may be construed as exclusion. We strive for a happy working environment for all staff members and open invitations to staff social events.

We are all colleagues whilst at work. Collegiality is being a part of a team, treating each other as equals, with respect and being friendly and supportive to those with whom you share a responsibility. Being kind and courteous and respectful. A friendship is an interpersonal relationship which goes beyond the workplace. Personal relationships or friendships at work may lead to "high school cliques" and possible fall-outs or exclusion. Relationships at work must be of colleague fashion and friendships should be conducted outside of the workplace.

Staff birthdays

On staff birthdays, every member of staff will be celebrated with a card which all staff will have the opportunity to sign. It is tradition that the staff member with a birthday buys or bakes a cake for their colleagues. Should a member of staff want to give a special present or bake a cake then this should be presented outside of school. This is to prevent inequality and to show everybody is treated equally in the workplace. If it is a special occasion, a "big" birthday or special celebration then a collection will be made and everybody will be given the opportunity to contribute.

Positivity and value

No member of staff should make any negative comments about another. Everyone should be treated with respect at all times. If you have a problem with another staff member then you should approach your mentor. If you are witness to this then it must be reported to prevent it from happening in the future. If it is not reported then it may be seen as condoning negative behaviour in the workplace.

Designated Mentors:

All staff will have mentor which they can approach with a problem or query, no other member of staff should be reliant upon another as this can be taken advantage of or manipulated.

Staff wellbeing mentor (teaching staff) Zoe Symons (Germoe), Jo Nicholas (Boskenwyn)

Staff Wellbeing mentor (non-teaching staff) Jan Burns (Germoe), Angie Larcome (Boskenwyn)

The headteacher can be approached at any time with a problem or query.

Weekly staff meetings

There will be a staff meeting each week for teaching staff and for non-teaching staff. Should a non-teaching staff member wish to join the after school teaching staff meetings then they are welcome to do so. However, we are aware that this is out of school hours and will be unpaid. The non-teaching staff meetings will be during school hours; led by Jan Burns at Germoe and Angie Larcombe at Boskenwyn. Meetings should reflect positivity and any grievances reported back to the Senior leadership team for urgent attention. All meetings will be minuted and shared on the staff noticeboards.

Everybody's ideas will be valued and opinions listened to, school priorities will be shared and everybody will have the opportunity to contribute to school development planning.

Professional development

All staff are entitled to continuing professional development. CPD interviews will follow a cycle of target setting in Summer/Autumn term, review in Spring term and Evaluation in Summer term
